A messare was laid before the Senate from the President transmitting a report of the Secretary of State upon the Fortune Bay fisheries question. After an executive session, adjourned.... House.—Bills, etc., were introduced and referred as follows: Requesting the President to communicate to the House all correspondence in regard to the proscription of Jews by the Russian Government; to tax and regulate the manufacture of glucose or grape sugar; proposing a constitutional amendment prohibiting Congress from passing a bill appropriating more than ten thousand dollars, except by a vote of the majority of members elected. After a short debate, a motion to suspend the rules and pass the River and Harbor bill was agreed to—yeas, 173; nays, 47. The Speaker laid before the House a message from the President transmitting copies of the correspondence with the Government of Great Britain in relation to the alleged outrage on American citizens at Fortune Bay, Newfoundland together with a report from the Secretary of State on the subject. The message and accompanying documents were ordered printed and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Sex Arm May 18.—The following kills. ing handwriting, testified that the paper on which the note of warning was written was cut by an instrument making a ragged edge from a sheet on the otaer part of which Whittaker, on the day following the outrage, had commenced writing a letter to his mother, and showed that every indented spot on the edge of one had its corresponding tooth opposite on the edge of the other. Every one of the experts, five in all, identified the handwriting in the note of warning, three of them being positive. In an interview Whittaker declare his innocence, and said that the discovery of the experts did not amount to anything, because all the cadets use the same kind of paper. He was in the habit of tearing whole sheets into halves to write, and the person who wrote the note might have come to his room who wrote the note might have come to his room and secured a piece of his paper and with of the army will exceed two million men. which the note of warning was written was cut and secured a piece of his paper and with many samples of his handwriting before him might have forged the note. And the same point the Republican press and leaders are again emphasizing in their commendation of General Wickham, who heads the electoral ticket of the Virginia Republicans. The General is a real Confederate Brigadier, having actually served in the rebel army. But as he has chosen, in the exercise of his political freedom, to act with the Republican party, his offenses are all con-doned; and even such bitter Republican papers as the Detroit Post take pains to
